

Financial support and guidance for the childcare sector during COVID19: Information briefing 6.0 – 6 January 2021

Education and childcare provision: Impact of latest Government announcements

Pre-school education settings (PSEP), nursery units and nursery schools, primary and post primary schools are required to provide remote learning to pupils until the half term break in mid-February. Direct payments will be made to families whose children are entitled to free school meals. Special schools will remain open as usual.

Vulnerable children and children of key workers must have access to pre-schools (PSEP), nursery units and nursery schools and schools for supervised learning. Only one parent/guardian is required to be a key worker. The definitions of 'key worker' and vulnerable children are available on the Department of Education website. Parents working in the education and childcare sector are included in the definition.

Childcare settings-including those based in primary schools-and childminders, are to remain open. Informal childcare is also permitted to continue. Informal childcare is typically provided by grandparents and close family. It is not to be confused with unregistered childcare, provided by those not formally registered but who charge a fee, and is illegal.

It is vital that childcare remains at the heart of decision making in relation to Covid-19 restrictions for the benefit of children, parents and our society and economy as a whole.

Childcare sector continues to provide safe, quality care that is educationally and developmentally enriching

In recognition of the vital role of childcare, priority has been given to enabling the childcare sector to remain open, to both support parents to access work and provide essential childcare for those children whose parents need access to that care. This includes our youngest children, with the early years a critical point in child development, laying the foundations for lifelong learning and supporting their social and emotional development. Providing care and education for our youngest children cannot be done remotely, and we know from the evidence gathered throughout the pandemic that children are much less susceptible to severe clinical illness than the older population.

The Chief Medical Officer has previously advised that there is clear evidence that the great majority of children who experience Covid-19 have mild or no symptoms and make a full recovery. Evidence gathered through the pandemic to date also indicates that child-to-child and child-to-adult transmission of Covid-19 in childcare settings is not common. In consideration of the scientific and medical evidence, alongside the negative impact that early years and school closures were having on the health and wellbeing of children and the capacity of parents to return to work, settings and childminders have been permitted to open to all children since June 2020, with robust infection prevention and control measures in place. The full guidance being followed by the childcare sector – both to protect children, and staff - is available here. Whilst there is no evidence at this stage to suggest transmission of the new strain of Covid-19 causes more serious illness in either children or adults, settings continue to minimise the risks of transmission of either strain through strict compliance with the Department of Health's Covid-19 Childcare Guidance.

Many parents continue to express their confidence in the measures being implemented, and in the benefits to their children and the family overall in accessing childcare.

The Childcare Reference Group advocates for the inclusion of the entire childcare workforce alongside consideration of the prioritisation of the education workforce and other occupational groups in terms of vaccination roll out.

Short-term closure Support Fund opens for applications

A £3.64 million fund to provide financial assistance for Covid-19 related closures in the childcare sector between September and December 2020 has now opened for applications. Those eligible to apply include registered Childminders, Daycare Providers, School Age Childcare, Crèches and Playgroups who have been reactivated by the Trust, operational during the period 1 September 2020 to 31 December 2020 and are still currently operational.

Funding will be allocated based on the type and / or size of a setting, and the length of period of closure. Full details are available here. Funding has also been allocated for childcare providers located on school sites who were unable to operate due to school closures between 19 and 30 October 2020. Full details are available here.

Recognising that this is also a financially difficult time for many parents, one of the objectives of the support and a condition of the funding is to ensure that childcare providers did not charge parents while their provision was temporarily closed due to Covid-19 during September to December.

Applications opened on 6 January and will close on 5 February 2021 at 5pm. The scheme is being administered by Early Years – the organisation for young children, on behalf of DE. Initially, eligible providers who have notified their HSCT Early Years Teams of a positive case in their setting, and those providers located on school premises, will have received an invitation to apply from Family Support NI. Any queries should be sent to the Early Years Organisation.

Childcare Sustainability Support Fund

The Childcare Sustainability Support Fund also remains open and will close on Friday 5 February 2021 at 5pm. Further information is available here. This Fund is designed to further support the sustainability of the childcare sector in Northern Ireland, building on previous financial recovery scheme, to help childcare providers that have opened – or remained open – in the period 1 September to 31 December 2020. The Scheme is also being administered by Early Years – the organisation for young children, on behalf of the Department of Education.
